Message:

I am a life long Republican. After witnessing the dis function in Congress, I am concerned that gerrymandering is at the root of the problem. Both political parties contribute to the issue.

Gerrymandering effectively results in politicians picking the electorate. This process creates a disincentive for compromise. This disincentive is the root of the dis function.

As removing gerrymandering is counter to politicians goal of remaining in office, I have no realistic expectation that this communication will achieve the desired effect. However, my comments were solicited by my state senator so I felt I should respectfully respond.

Thank you.
