Message:

Will the officials who stated that the maps were drawn without race in mind be charged with perjury since the DOJ recently stated that our district maps were drawn with race in mind? Because advocates for the equal representation of minorities have been saying that the maps showed evidence of racial discrimination, but the State of Texas said that this was not the case. What the State of Texas argued cannot be true if the DOJ is correct, so I am assuming that the elected officials in question will be charged with perjury and that the State is conceding to the advocacy agencies that filed briefs about these racially discriminatory maps. If this is not how you would like to proceed, then I urge you to stand up like a Texan and tell the DOJ that they can take their nonsensical request home and keep it there.

With love,
A Born and Raised Texan
