Message:

I was born and raised in Texas. From a young age, I was taught to be proud of my state, the fact that we fought back against tyrants despite lacking in numbers, that we were a republic of people that held its own against a country, and that our tenacity is engraved in our bones and memory.

The fact that this, redistricting in the hopes of preventing peoples' voices from being heard, is even being considered when there are Texans in need of help and suffering is disgusting beyond measure. How can you claim to be a Texan and kneel to tyrants? How can you claim to be a Texan and not care about your own people? And of all things, how can you claim to be a Texan and forget what the Lone Star State stands for?

When you are a child born in Texas, you learn its pledge. 'Honor the Texas flag; I pledge allegiance to thee, Texas, one state under God, one and indivisible.' How dare you betray that. You divide your own constituents and bury their voices, which is made up of the people of Texas, for a handshake with the devil. Shame on you.

Just as the those in the past who fought for independence cried out 'Remember the Alamo!', us in the present will shout "Remember your pledge!".

We will not forget.
