Message:

To the Members of the Senate Special Committee on Congressional Redistricting,

As a proud Texan, I am writing to express my deep concern and strong opposition to the current attempt to redraw congressional maps mid-decade.

This redistricting effort is not only unnecessary and premature, but it also diverts critical attention and resources from far more urgent matters—such as flood relief and infrastructure repair—which directly impact the safety and well-being of thousands of Texans.

Furthermore, I am especially disturbed by the blatant disregard for minority representation in these proposed maps. Texas is a diverse state, and our congressional maps should reflect and respect that reality. Redrawing lines to dilute the power of minority voters is not only unjust, but it betrays the very principles of fair and democratic representation. Our voices matter, and any attempt to silence or sideline them is unacceptable.

This process appears to be politically motivated and rushed—done not in the public’s interest, but in the interest of preserving power. That is not what Texans deserve. We deserve fair maps, drawn transparently, with input from the communities most affected.

I urge this committee to halt the redistricting process, refocus efforts on the real issues affecting our communities, and commit to a fair and representative democratic process that truly reflects the diversity and needs of this state.
