Message:

It is deeply concerning that GOP leaders in Texas are once again prioritizing political power over the people they were elected to serve — this time by attempting to redraw district maps in a way that silences Democratic voters and undermines fair representation.

At a time when Texans are facing real, urgent challenges — from a crumbling power grid and skyrocketing property taxes to underfunded public schools and lack of access to healthcare — the focus should be on solutions, not on manipulating district lines to preserve partisan control.

Redistricting should be about ensuring equal representation for every Texan, not disenfranchising communities for political gain. These kinds of power grabs only deepen division and distract from the critical work that needs to be done.

Texans are tired of performative politics. We need leaders who care more about solving problems than rigging maps. We need fair districts, real leadership, and a government that works for everyone — not just those in power.
