Hello.

I want to express my shock and dismay at the choice of an unnecessary and discriminatory redistricting push by the federal leadership, which has resulted in a state power grab that does not benefit or serve Texas voters. A real need for a Special Session would be to address emergency procedures in the Texas Hill Country after the recent flooding. The Texas governor should not be bullied into making up new voting districts. He should show an independent Texas spirit and get to work taking care of the people of this state. Spending his time yelling empty threats at Texas Democratic leaders does not inspire confidence. It only shows how little he values Texans who live into their values.

Do better, and unite our lawmakers rather than dividing them further with blatant voter suppression.

Thank you,
Amy Longfield
