Message:

I am writing to express my deep frustration and profound disappointment with the decision to focus the current special session on redrawing congressional maps. This is an action that reeks of political opportunism rather than responsible governance. Texas is still reeling from the devastating floods that struck Kerr and surrounding communities just weeks ago. Families have lost homes, businesses have shuttered, lives have been needlessly lost, and communities are struggling to recover. Yet rather than dedicating this session to meaningful disaster relief, infrastructure improvements, or any number of pressing issues facing everyday Texans, our state leadership has chosen to prioritize partisan gerrymandering.

Let's be clear: this proposed redistricting is not driven by a constitutional necessity or a court order. It's a power grab timed not to serve Texans, but to serve the political ambitions of Donald Trump, who has publicly demanded a mid-decade redraw in order to manufacture five additional Republican seats in the U.S. House of Representatives. This is a travesty and a deeply cynical move that undermines the democratic process and erodes public trust in our institutions.

As a Texan, I expect my representatives to stand up for the people of this state and not to one man's political vengeance tour. We should be strengthening our emergency response systems, ensuring access to clean water, repairing damaged infrastructure, and helping Texans rebuild their lives. These are the real priorities. Playing political games with our electoral maps while Texans suffer is not just irresponsible, it's flat out immoral.

Any politician who votes for these map is voting against Texas, Texans, and the United States of America.

I urge you to reject this blatant manipulation of our electoral system and instead use your voice and power to advocate for what Texans truly need: leadership that puts people over politics.
