Message:

I am a 25y/o, sixth-generation Texan who works for a manufacturing company in Dallas. I had family at the Alamo who fought for my freedom to have a say in how this place is run.

I firmly oppose any redistricting efforts in Texas that manipulate boundaries to favor one party over another, especially outside of the regular redistricting cycle. Every Texan deserves the right to participate in elections where their choice of who will best represent their values and interests is equally weighted.

The type of partisanship and gerrymandering like what is being pursued right now has resulted in a Texas that, in my eyes, has regressed over my lifetime. How are we the people supposed to shape the best policy for this state (and this country) if our elections are not even fair?

Thank you for your consideration, if you even bother to read this.
