Regarding: Congressional

Message:

I strongly oppose the rushed and unnecessary mid-decade redistricting process currently underway in Texas. Redrawing congressional maps just a few years after the 2021 redistricting—without any new Census data—is a blatant power grab, not a legitimate response to population changes. This process is clearly designed to entrench political power at the expense of fair representation, especially as public support for MAGA extremism continues to decline.

Governor Abbott’s decision to call a special session just one week after catastrophic floods devastated communities across our state is deeply troubling. It prioritizes partisan political maneuvering over the urgent needs of Texans who are suffering and in need of relief.

This process is being conducted with no requirement for public input, no transparency, and no accountability. That is unacceptable. Texans deserve a redistricting process that is open, fair, and truly representative of our diverse population.

I urge lawmakers to stop this undemocratic effort and instead commit to drawing maps that reflect the real Texas—diverse, growing, and deserving of a government that represents all of us, not just those in power.
