Message:

I unequivocally condemn any redistricting efforts in Texas designed to suppress, silence, or marginalize the voices of voters. Gerrymandering, no matter who engages in it, is a direct attack on our democracy. It distorts the electoral map to serve partisan interests, stripping power from communities who deserve fair and equal representation. This deliberate manipulation of district lines is not just unethical, it is an assault on the principle of one person, one vote.

Every Texan deserves an equal say in choosing their leaders. When maps are drawn behind closed doors to rig outcomes and entrench power, it shatters public trust, disenfranchises entire communities, and undermines the legitimacy of our elections. In a state as dynamic, diverse, and rapidly evolving as Texas, our political boundaries must reflect the people, not the ambitions of a single party.

Let's be clear: any attempt to redraw districts in a way that disproportionately silences Democratic voters, communities of color, or any underrepresented group is not just wrong, it is fundamentally un-American. It betrays the ideals this country was built on.

We must demand a redistricting process that is fair, nonpartisan, and fully accountable to the people. Representation is not a privilege for the powerful; it is a constitutional right that belongs to every Texan. Anything less is a failure of our democratic duty.
