Message:

Redistricting should be done solely on the basis of better representing the overall population in any given area. It should never be used to gain political grounds that would otherwise be unattainable. The GOP's attempt to gerrymander districts, and to misrepresent the people of Texas through this process is abhorrent. The Republican Party has lost its backbone. Perhaps this is why they recognize winning another election would be impossible without such under-the-table tactics as this.

Instead of taking taxpayer money and precious time to redistrict and misrepresent the people of Texas, I submit the Republican Party should instead meditate upon its own morality. The leadership of this country should take a moment to recognize that they are representative of the people and should therefore make decisions that benefit first and foremost, the people of this nation.
