Message:

Texas should not be fodder for a political power grab. This great state has an abundance of diverse people, and every single Texan deserves fair representation. A criminally crooked president should not be able to pull the puppet strings of this state's representatives. There are a lot of things wrong with the current governing power of this state, but the biggest error is that we are simply pawns in Trump's never-ending pursuit of power. No president should be held on an infallible pedestal.

Furthermore, the current government of this state should be re-examined and ruled on whether they are fit to serve a state that historically supported stronger state government. If the congressmen that represent Texas cower to the powers that be, how can we, as Texan constituents, possibly sit back and allow that to happen? We are a state that fought for our independence, and pushed back against corrupt leaders, and developed a long lasting spirit of patriotism as a result.

Now, we as a state are willingly serving a purpose set out by an egregiously dangerous individual and which do not serve us at all. This person was given an obscene amount of power, and has proven time and time again to be unworthy of it. I do not believe the allegations of Donald Trump being a rapist, and a likely co-conspirator of Jeffrey Epstein, are unfounded. In fact, I think it is now time for Texas lawmakers to stand on business for what is right - what is ethically correct - and to distance themselves once and for all from the influence of DJT.

So many of this state's laws are centered around making this state more virtuous and ethical, yet the crimes of the president (not to mention the crimes of Texas' attorney general, Ken Paxton) are simply swept under the rug. The people who scream and cry about cancel culture when accused of being sexist and racist, are also the ones actively benefitting from being sexist and racist.

Women are not objects. Little girls are not sex symbols. By affiliating with such viciousness and hedonism, you are condemning your own souls. The time to do what needs to be done is now.
