Message:

I am no longer a republican, nor have I become a democrat. Here are some unbiased comments from someone who is embarrassed to call themselves an American citizen:

Misrepresenting the population a threat to democracy. Democrat or Republican, if you have to manipulate maps to ensure party majority, it's no longer fair representation. Misinformation and greed is accelerating America's decline from a developed nation into what is effectively a modern day second-world country. Keeping people sick, undereducated, and economically trapped is systemic and calculated neglect. It's a symptom of a country that refuses to invest in its people the way true first-world nations do.

Now that I got that out of the way, let me start pointing fingers. The Republican Party nominated a convicted felon. A sex offender. A man who openly vowed to pardon Nazis and insurrectionists. A man who continues to incite hate, fear, and division, because without it, they knew they could not win. Even after committing more crimes against the United States (are we surprised?), betraying our allies, and attacking the very foundations of our democracy, they defend him. This is not leadership. This is not patriotism. This is a disgrace. I am outraged, not just by his actions, but by the COMPLACENCY THAT ENABLES HIM. He has shown no remorse, no accountability, and no regard for the rule of law

I don't support nazi's, I don't support sex trafficking, I don't support child molesters, nor do I support redistricting Texas to be represented by those who do. If it takes any more brain power than an 8 year old to draw districts on a map with crayons, you have betrayed your constituents.
