Message:

Redistricting or gerrymandering districts to create safe seats for the favored party silences those who do not favor the leading party. I honestly believed that, even though I live in a "red" state that, Texas was fair, just and respected those on the other end of the political spectrum. Gerrymandering creates a distrust between the government and their constituents. Silencing the minority does not create a "just" society, however it puts those on one side of the aisle against the other. In order to see Texas prosper and prevail against all odds, it's the governments job to ensure that all voices are equal, heard, and represented to its fullest extent.
