Good morning.

I'd like to formally complain about the current redistricting plan under governor Greg Abbot. Such a plan is blatantly unfair and undemocratic in a way that is impossible to miss. As it stands, Texas democrats hold a roughly 45% share of the actual population, and roughly 31% representation in congress. While this already does a terrible job of representing the people of our great state, the current planned map being fought for by the Texas republicans would push the representation down to 20%-- less than half the real value. This is undemocratic. In every state, the proportion of representatives should roughly equal the population, because the job of a representative is. To. Represent. This is openly corrupt, pushed by a blatant political motivation planning to erase the opposition. The districts are also completely illogical, clearly generated by a computer to make numbers on a spreadsheet line up. I for one, as a legal resident of Texas for the past 21 years, dissent.
