Message:

I am writing as a concerned resident of Fort Worth, Texas, to strongly oppose the current efforts to redraw Texas's congressional maps mid-decade. These redistricting efforts appear to be nothing more than a partisan attempt to entrench political power at the expense of fair representation.

It is deeply troubling that these proposed changes are being considered outside of the standard redistricting cycle and without transparent justification. This process undermines the fundamental principle of representative democracy. Redistricting should serve the people, not political parties, and it should protect the voting power of all Texans, regardless of race, region, or political affiliation.

As a voter, I want to feel confident that my voice matters and that the maps are drawn fairly, based on population and community needs, not partisan advantage. These actions, if allowed to move forward, will erode public trust in our institutions and further polarize an already divided electorate.

I urge the committee to reject this effort and instead commit to a transparent, nonpartisan approach that upholds the integrity of our elections and the rights of every Texan to have equal representation.
