Message:

I strongly oppose the current effort to redraw congressional district boundaries in Texas during this mid-decade special session. Redistricting is a process that should serve voters—not politicians—and any attempt to alter district lines outside the normal census cycle raises serious concerns about fairness, transparency, and political manipulation.

It is especially troubling that this redistricting effort appears to be driven not by local necessity or public demand, but by direct political pressure from President Trump. No single individual—regardless of political party—should influence how our state's democratic boundaries are drawn, especially when the clear objective is to secure partisan advantage rather than ensure equal representation.

Furthermore, these changes would likely dismantle long-standing coalition districts that give underrepresented communities—especially Black and Latino Texans—a fair voice in Congress. Diluting their representation would be both unjust and potentially unconstitutional.

Texans deserve maps that reflect the true diversity and needs of our communities—not maps engineered to lock in political power. I urge you to reject this redistricting proposal and instead focus on addressing the real issues facing Texans, including flood relief, infrastructure, and education.

Respectfully,
