Message:

I strongly oppose the proposed redistricting plan in Texas as a born Texan. As Texas has grown in population and diversity within the recent decade, the proposed redistricting plan completely disregard this growth in which it undermines the voices of the broader population in Texas in favor to bring more power to one party over the other. It undermines the voices of urban voters and communities of culture specifically as well. It completely goes against democracy where every citizen's voice should have equal amount of power. The redistricting plan clearly only serve political interests rather than representing the population that resides in Texas now.

I urge the legislature for a fair and inclusive sound redistricting that properly reflects the current Texas population in order to uphold democracy in our state. Ignoring the voices of the masses is unconstitutional and the current plan of redistricting obviously serving the political game corrupts is corrupt. The government needs to prioritize Texans voices asking for help with out issues now—especially more considering the flooding disaster at San Antonio—rather focusing on redistricting the map that does not answer the cries for help of our Texan citizens. Texas failing to hear the needs of the people that need assistance to only focus on the political game is absolutely vile and gross. To further demean the voices of the mass with the current redistricting plan will establish how unpatriotic our government is as it is the people that makes the state. To go against the people of the state is to go against patriotism itself.
