Message:

As a native Texan I am aware of the effects of gerrymandering as they have impacted me. I lived in North Austin and went to school on the east side of I-35. Schools here are predominantly kids of color and they are not receiving the help and resources they need. Since I have learned about the horrible legal racism I have and am against this redistricting. It has and always is another way to keep not just people of color down but poorer people. Every single decision like this is always to help and push a higher class even higher making it unattainable for poorer people to accumulate wealth. Why does congress believe that these people's opinions and votes don't matter? Your job is to be a public civil servant to the people's needs. We urge you to think about the impacts on not just you and your reelection but people who are already struggling in a world that systematically pushes them farther. You want to see change but don't listen to the people that need it the most, all you see is your paycheck growing and your acceptance rate. I implore you to think at the end of your life while your on your death bed will all that money and hate and unjust discrimination that you held made the world a better place? Reliving your life through your last moments did you feel good about yourself when you made it impossible for people who live and love the same way as you do to have a voice and equal opportunity? It's not just about you and your next paycheck because I can promise you if this happens the people will retaliate against the so called civil servants of congress. You will regret doing this, please think about your own job security will people higher up than you care in the long run you did this? You can always be replaced by someone cheaper and more submissive. I ask you this, will you represent the people like you swore you would? Or will you oblige to a horrible capitalist racist institute that has lived for too long? Will you be the change and hope we need?
