Message:

When the lines on a map hold more power than the voices of the people, we have lost sight of the purpose of democracy. Redistricting should reflect the rhythm of communities, not the strategies of those clinging to power. Gerrymandering is not just a political tactic, it's a quiet form of disenfranchisement, a reshaping of truth to serve ambition. If our leaders must redraw the map to win, they have already lost the trust of the people. Texas deserves better, not manipulation, but representation.
