To the Members of the Texas Senate:

I am writing to express my deep opposition to the proposed redistricting plan that threatens to undermine the democratic foundations of our state. The proposed maps do not reflect the will or composition of the people of Texas. Instead, they appear to be engineered to suppress the voices of millions of Texans—especially voters in communities of color and those aligned with the Democratic Party.

Redistricting should be a process that protects fair representation, not one that manipulates political lines to secure partisan advantage. What is being proposed is not democracy. It is gerrymandering—plain and simple—and it silences the very people our Constitution and electoral system are designed to empower.

The demographics of Texas are rapidly changing. Our communities are growing more diverse, and this diversity should be celebrated through representation, not erased through redistricting. When maps are drawn to diminish the voting power of entire populations, the result is not only unjust—it is un-American.

I urge you to reconsider this course of action and return to the fundamental principle that every Texan's vote should count equally. Democracy thrives when it is inclusive and representative. The people of Texas deserve better than a system rigged to protect power instead of serve the public.

Respectfully,
Heidi Convery
