Message:

I am writing to you today as a concerned Texan regarding the ongoing redistricting process. I believe that a decision of this magnitude, which will have a lasting impact on our state's representation, should be handled with the utmost transparency and with the goal of ensuring fair and equitable districts for all citizens.

The current redistricting efforts, occurring just four months before a major election, raise serious concerns about the integrity of our electoral process. The perception that these new maps are being drawn to favor one political party over another is deeply troubling and erodes public trust in our democratic institutions. I respectfully urge you to consider the importance of a redistricting process that is guided by principles of fairness, not partisan advantage.

I also believe that a nonpartisan committee would be the ideal body to undertake the critical task of drawing district lines. This approach would help to remove the process from the political arena and ensure that districts are drawn to represent the interests of all Texans, rather than serving the agendas of a select few.

Furthermore, the recent actions involving the Texas Democrats, while they may be seen as a political maneuver, have been widely perceived as an overreach of authority and contribute to the growing sense of political polarization in our state. This is an issue that is, in my opinion, not befitting of the great state of Texas.

I am a strong advocate for a democratic process that is free, fair, and impartial. I hope you will take my concerns into consideration and work toward a solution that will restore confidence in our electoral system.

Sincerely,

Jamie Galindo
