Message:

I am submitting this public comment to express my strong opposition to the proposed redistricting bill. Governor Abbott is using the special session to push Trump's political agenda. This is a blatant power grab meant to dilute the voices of Texas's rapidly growing minority communities and progressive voters. This redistricting bill is bad for our democracy. It's not about fair representation; it's about rigging elections for political power. Redistricting usually happens every ten years after the census. Doing it now, in the middle of the decade, is driven by political reasons, not by real population changes. These new maps would lead to less competitive elections. When districts are drawn to guarantee a certain partisan outcome, it reduces voter choice and discourages civic participation. Texas deserves a transparent, non-partisan redistricting process that genuinely reflects our state's incredible growth and diversity. This bill represents the exact opposite. I urge you to reject this dangerous legislation and uphold the fundamental right of every Texan to have their vote count equally.
