Message:

The current attempt by members of this administration to redistrict Texas, more specifically Houston, Texas, is an illegal attempt to remain in power. Instead of the Republican Party protecting our interests, they have solely focused on fear mongering and doing what they can to remain in power. Despite many Texans prioritizing this political party, Republican politicians have shown time and time again that their alliance is not with the citizens of Texas, many of which are proud to be from this great state. Instead of reflecting on your own failures and those of your colleagues, instead of holding your colleagues and party members accountable for the disappointing actions or lack of action over the last 20 or so years, you waste our taxpayer dollars on holding a special session to make sure your constituents don't get the things they've been trusting you to get done. I am against the redistricting in Texas. Instead of creating new districts to make your job easier for you, why don't you actually get some work done. In case you haven't checked in with your district's wants and needs here are other things you could work on: Upgrading our emergency management system, creating and installing better flood systems, providing adequate education to our children and funding our schools, improving our power grid, literally anything useful to actual every day citizens.
