Message:

I believe in fair and equitable elections where every community has the opportunity to be fairly represented. The decision to call a special session focused on redistricting feels both premature and out of place — especially without any transparency around the data being used to justify such changes. It's deeply concerning that this effort appears aimed at reshaping minority-led districts to better align with a partisan agenda. Redistricting should never be used as a tool to dilute the voices of underrepresented communities or to entrench political power. Without public access to the data or a clear justification, this process lacks the accountability and fairness that Texans deserve.
