Message:

This letter is written to express my absolute outrage and unequivocal opposition to the blatant gerrymandering tactics currently underway in your redistricting efforts. What you are attempting is not only undemocratic—it is an insult to the very foundation of representative government.

Let me be clear: this redistricting process is a thinly veiled attempt to drown out the voices of Democratic voters, especially those in diverse, urban areas, in order to further entrench Republican power. It is an abuse of your authority, a manipulation of electoral boundaries for partisan gain, and a direct attack on the will of the people.

This isn't representation—it's repression. It's cowardice. When politicians redraw maps not to reflect population changes but to silence dissent and cement their own control, they admit they cannot win fairly. You are actively choosing political survival over democratic integrity, and Texans see through it.

You are stripping power from communities that have every right to be heard. You are rigging the system against those who believe in progress, equity, and accountability. And for what? To cling to a shrinking base that can only maintain power through manipulation?

This state deserves better. Our democracy deserves better. You were not elected to bend the rules in your favor—you were elected to uphold the Constitution, to serve your constituents, all of them, not just the ones who voted for you. Redistricting should be about fair representation, not partisan preservation.

I stand firmly against this sham of a redistricting process. Gerrymandering is voter suppression, plain and simple. And while you may redraw lines on a map, you will not erase the voices of the people who are fed up, fired up, and watching every move you make.

Do better. Or get ready to be replaced by those who will.

A deeply concerned—and furious—Texan
