Message:

Texas already redrew its maps in 2021, but those maps face ongoing court challenges for racial gerrymandering. Now, under pressure from Trump and national Republicans, state leaders are pushing new maps - not because of new data, but to cling to power. With extremist policies losing ground, they're rushing a mid-decade redraw to lock in partisan control ahead of 2026. This isn't normal - it's a calculated, anti-democratic power grab meant to manipulate the system.
