Message:

I'm writing to voice concern over the proposed redistricting of Texas' congressional seat maps. Redistricting efforts should only be undertaken to account for changes in population growth after each census, but instead lawmakers are caving to pressure from the federal government to influence voting maps and create more partisan gerrymandering, which silences already disfranchised voters. I urge the committee to consider the fair representation of ALL voters, especially those whose voices are often overlooked, in their decision.
