Message:

I have been seeing a lot about the attempted redistricting in my state and I am ashamed. Especially, since I have heard little to nothing about the tragic flood and what is being done to help the people. If you can't win your elections with fair distribution of districts, and have to resort to making the district map look like a toddler drew all over it, then you might be doing something wrong or obviously unpopular with the constituents. Anyone who looks at the map as it is can tell the geographical gymnastics that have been done to split the people as you see fit to get your votes. It is shameful! Texans should be better than this political trickery, but have been proven otherwise. Have some respect for the citizens of this state, and do what is right.
