Message:

As a Texan who cares deeply about fair representation, I strongly oppose any redistricting efforts that compromise the integrity of our democracy. Gerrymandering—especially when used for partisan or racial advantage—harms public trust and silences communities that deserve to be heard.

Redistricting should be a transparent and fair process, not a strategy to manipulate outcomes or hold onto power. History has shown that Texas is no stranger to unfair map-drawing practices, and it's time for that to change.

I urge the Legislature and redistricting committees to reject any maps that weaken voter influence or ignore the will of the people. Lawmakers are elected to serve all Texans, not to game the system.

This process must reflect the diversity and voices of our state. Anything less is a disservice to democracy—and a violation of our constitutional rights.

Texas belongs to everyone, not just the powerful.
