Message:

I'm writing to express concern about the recent redistricting in Texas, which appears to disproportionately favor one political party. Fair representation is a cornerstone of a healthy democracy, and I believe redistricting should be conducted in a way that reflects the true diversity and interests of all communities—without prioritizing political advantage. I urge decision-makers to ensure that district lines are drawn transparently and equitably, so every Texan's vote carries equal weight, regardless of party affiliation.
