Message:

These maps are being drawn blatantly and openly not to reflect the populations they serve, but to secure more seats to keep for one party. I don't remember where in all the founding literature of this country where the founding fathers wrote anything about democracy being best when votes are manipulated to benefit specific outcomes instead of accurately reflect the desires of the served population. Therefore, I don't see how this move is anything but un-American and anti-democracy. Gerrymandering is a huge problem, the solution should not be to make it worse. If those in power were actually concerned with representing the populations they would get rid of all this squiggly line lunacy and draw clear, unbiased maps. I wonder which other country's have statesmen who blindly follow a leader instead of reflecting the views of ALL the people they serve?
