Redistricting committee,

I strongly oppose efforts to redistrict in the middle of a census cycle.

It is wrong, not the normal manner of redistricting and is a totally political partisan move that takes partisan politics to a new level in Texas and will probably have ramifications thru out the country. Don't be state that further divides America.

Whatever happen to "compact and contiguous" for congressional disticts? The time to redistrict is after the census as it has been. Ideally then let a computer draw up districts with a non partisan overview committee. i know both sides have had their share of partisan gerrymandering, but it needs to stop rather than getting more and more out of hand.

I'm just one person but plenty more feel this way. And plenty more are unlikely to vote for any one next fall that supports redistricting now!
