Message:

The Governor of Texas and the Texas GOP congressional delegation seem to have no minds of their own. The President tells Gov. Abbott to redistrict and Abbott calls a special session to Redistrict AND to address the Hill Country flooding disaster in July.

More than 130 people were killed in that tragedy. BUT the Governor and the state house and senate have not even mentioned the disaster. In other words, to them it is more important to try to please the president than to address the needs of real people.

Texas has already addressed the redistricting issue after the 2020 census. It may have not been the most fair map that could have been drawn, but the deed had been done.

To redistrict now is just to please one man and is not meant to provide justice for the voters.

I also understand that the U.S. Dept of Justice sent the governor a letter saying that it wanted fewer minority districts. If those districts are not changed the state would incur the wrath of the govt. and penalties would result.

Is this any way to run our state and national governments?

Shouldn't our politicians care more about the issues of jobs, wages and inflation? Shouldn't we want safer streets without the threat of people being kidnapped while walking on those streets.

I implore you to not push the Texas redistricting plan. It is silly, divisive and costly.

There is no reason to redistrict at this time. How about after the 2030 census.

Thank you for taking the time to read my message.
