Message:

This redistricting plan reeks of the sort of politics people are tired of. Most people I know, democrats and republicans, are yearning for more moderate positions. This sort of redistricting, while it may seem like a positive short-term gain for republicans, seems to push parties to their more extreme positions. Frankly, I'm amazed that this plan is being concocted so brazenly, not in the name of balance or representation but rather to do as Trump dictates and find a way to pick up 5 more republican seats in Texas. This doesn't seem to take into consideration true representation of the people of Texas. These schemes are why people are tired of politics and suspicious of politicians. The justification for a mid-decade redistricting plan is purely to protect power and not to serve the people of Texas. I believe we can do better than this in Texas. At the very least please make transparent the process by which these maps were created, and the justifications for any changes.
