Message:

To attempt to alter the voting maps in mid-decade years is clearly a "trump-ordered" power grab and does NOT have the best interests of Texas citizens in mind.

Even if Republicans are successful in doing this, it could certainly backfire because the population shifts across Texas are rapidly shifting and election outcomes can easily shift when voters are able to see the "bully-behavior" of Governor Abbott and react against it."

It is high time that Texas chooses a method of redistricting which is less partisan and takes into careful consideration a balanced approach so ALL elected officials are put in the position of representing ALL of their constituents rather than leaning to the extremes of either party. This requires rational thinking and negotiations in our legislative branches and switches the tables from having legislators select the constituents they want, to a more equitable approach of allowing the voters to select the legislators they have good reason to believe will practice Democracy by seeking to represent ALL as opposed to some.
