Message:

My name is Shirley Ronquillo, and I live in Congressional District 29 in East Aldine, Houston, TX.

I am opposed to redistricting. Redistricting Congressional District 29 will dilute our power to elect someone who truly understands the needs of our community—hardworking, entrepreneurial, and resilient residents. We need someone who speaks our language and knows the barriers we face every day.

Texas needs to prioritize the needs of Texans who are struggling to recover from natural disasters. We have not seen sufficient investment in infrastructure to keep residents safe. Texas has so many other needs that should be addressed and funded. Instead, this urgency to redistrict by calling a special session makes it clear that someone else is now running Texas.

I am tired of being told what is best for us by elected officials who benefit from the privilege of their skin color or their zip code. Redistricting has an official process through which it should be addressed.

Let's stand together, oppose redistricting, and fight to keep our power local.
