Message:

My name is Villa Shurielle Bodden, and I am an artist and entrepreneur in Texas. After experiencing what I believe to be significant injustices from federal, state, and corporate entities, I decided to run for political office.

I am the candidate for the 18th Congressional District and am confident of a positive outcome. A primary concern for me is the safety of Texans as we enter hurricane season, especially since many have yet to recover from previous floods. The issue of redistricting poses potential challenges for all involved, and my priority is to protect our community.

The recent redistricting, driven by the Biden administration despite Republican opposition, has led to new tense discussion surrounding new district lines. This, combined with the two new seats from the 2020 census and a vacant seat, has created an opportunity for the left to potentially gain ground in the House.

However, as the conservative candidate for this district, I believe the Democrats will still find themselves short on votes. I am talking to the people. What is important is a change in their quality of life. Allowing constituents the opportunity and access to training, resources and other and whatever else that they may need to be the entity they desire to be. They too deserve to own properties, companies, IRA & Investment accounts. They too deserve to live the rest most United States citizens and residents do.
