Message:

I'm against any redistricting in Texas that tries to silence Democratic voters. Gerrymandering hurts our democracy by giving one party an unfair advantage and diluting the voices of communities—especially people of color, young voters, and working-class Texans.

Every vote should count equally. When district lines are drawn for political gain, it damages trust, discourages participation, and weakens fair representation. Texas is diverse and growing fast—our maps should reflect that, not ignore it.

Redistricting should be fair, transparent, and for the people. Representation is a right, not a privilege.
