Message:

To the Honorable Members of the State Senate,

I write to you today as a citizen deeply troubled by the continued manipulation of our democratic system through partisan redistricting. The current efforts to redraw district lines for the benefit of the Republican Party are not merely acts of political bias—they are rooted in racial injustice and the systematic silencing of marginalize communities.

Gerrymandering has long been used to dilute the power of communities of color. By fragmenting neighborhoods and contorting districts into unrecognizable shapes, the political elite suppress the voices of Black, Brown, and underrepresented voters. This is not simply unfair; it is a form of institutionalized racism. It is an affront to the principles of equal representation upon which this country was founded.

When elected officials prioritize the prosperity of a political party over the well-being of their constituents, they violate both the Constitution and the public trust. Representatives are chosen to serve the people, not the interests of a party steeped in exclusionary ideology. Redistricting that entrenches power through prejudice undermines the fundamental democratic ideal of “one person, one vote.”

It is no longer "We the People" when maps are drawn to serve the few, not the many.

It is a sad and sobering moment when men and women in power abandon the pursuit of justice for the lure of personal and partisan gain. When right yields to greed, and ethics are sacrificed for control, we all suffer. The integrity of our elections, the trust in our institutions, and the hope of our future hang in the balance.

A Call to Action:

I urge you to stand for justice. Reject maps drawn in the image of discrimination. Insist on transparency, fairness, and community input. Restore the principle that representatives should earn their seats through the support of the people—not through manufactured districts designed to ensure victory for the privileged few.

The future of our democracy depends on your courage.
