Regarding: Congressional

Message:

I would ask lawmakers why this is even being considered when there is admittedly no new information that would make redistricting a priority right now? This is being done for political reasons pure and simple. History tells us that the party in the White House will likely lose the majority in Congress at the midterms. So instead of working to overcome history through policy, the GOP is seeking to stack the deck. This is political gerrymandering and it's simply wrong. Do not redraw districts because you will start something you can't undo.
