Written Statement Opposing the Texas Redistricting Map
Impacting District 9

As a concerned resident of Congressional District 9, I strongly oppose the proposed Texas redistricting map, which unjustly alters the boundaries of our community and undermines the political representation of minority voters in our district. The redrawing of District 9 appears to be a deliberate attempt to dilute the voting power of historically marginalized communities, especially Black and Latino voters, in direct contradiction to the principles of fair representation and democratic participation.

District 9, under the leadership of Congressman Al Green, has long served as a voice for diverse, underserved populations in Southwest Houston and surrounding areas. The new map threatens to fragment our community, diminish our collective voice, and reverse decades of progress in building political power for communities of color. This is not just a matter of lines on a map—this is about our access to healthcare, education, economic opportunity, and civil rights.

The Voting Rights Act of 1965 prohibits discriminatory redistricting practices that weaken the political strength of minority populations. The proposed changes appear to violate both the letter and spirit of this law by diminishing the influence of voters who have fought hard for equitable representation.

I call on our state leaders and elected officials to reject this redistricting map and instead adopt a fair, transparent process that protects the integrity of communities like ours. We deserve maps that reflect our shared interests, uphold our voting rights, and ensure every Texan has a fair and equal voice in government.

We must stand against any attempt to disenfranchise voters through political manipulation. Our democracy depends on it.

Sincerely,
Christi Hicks
