Message:

As a veteran who has proudly served this country to protect the Constitution and the democratic values it upholds, I am writing to express my strong opposition to the recent efforts to redraw electoral districts in Texas outside of the regular redistricting cycle.

The redistricting process, traditionally conducted once every ten years after the U.S. Census, is intended to reflect population changes—not to serve partisan interests. The current attempt to redraw districts mid-decade is not only unnecessary, but it blatantly disregards the democratic principles that countless Americans have fought to defend.

This move appears to be a calculated effort to manipulate the political landscape in favor of one party, undermining fair representation and the will of Texas voters. Gerrymandering of this nature is unethical, and attempting it outside the standard cycle may also be legally questionable.

As a Texan and as a veteran, I believe in a government that represents its people fairly and upholds the rule of law. I urge you and all responsible lawmakers to abandon these redistricting efforts and respect the democratic process.

I will continue to stand up for the values I served to protect—and that includes free and fair elections.
