Message:

To the members of the Senate Special Committee,

As a lifelong Texan and proud resident of Harris County, I am writing to express my deep concern and opposition to the redistricting proposal currently under consideration.

I have dedicated my life to public service because I believe in fairness, equity, and the power of community voice. That's why this proposed redistricting effort feels deeply troubling. From my view, it appears to be more about securing political power than ensuring fair and accurate representation of the people who live and work in our communities.

I know firsthand how important it is for every person to feel seen and heard in the democratic process. These maps seem to do the opposite, they fragment communities, weaken representation, and silence voices, especially in diverse areas like Harris County. This kind of gerrymandering chips away at public trust and damages the very foundation of our democracy.

Redistricting should be about reflecting the population honestly, not manipulating it. I respectfully urge you to reconsider these maps and adopt a process that centers transparency, integrity, and the will of the people.

Thank you for your time and for listening.

Sincerely,
Dr. Darlene Breaux
Harris County, Texas
