Message:

As a Texas voter, I urge the Texas Legislature to stop treating urban and suburban voters with contempt and disrespect.

83% of Texans are classified as urban, instead of rural. Most of us live in the cities of Dallas, Houston, El Paso, Austin and San Antonio. Time and again, the Republican governor and legislature of Texas have shown they will stop at nothing to keep us from having a voice in our state and national politics. They will break the law without compunction, as they are doing now.

Millions of urban voters like me power the Texas economy, have most of the spending power and pay most of the taxes in this state.

And yet, over and over again, the government of Texas resorts to violating the law to keep us from being able to vote in districts that represent our neighborhoods, out of fear that once we have the political representation we deserve, they will be out of a job.

Every single one of us knows exactly why the governor and the legislative majority is doing this--and it's just one in a long list of things that urban voters will remember on the day we finally have the representation we are owed in Texas politics.

Current Texas leaders are right to worry that they may lose power when that day comes. They are wrong to believe that they will be able to hold it off forever by putting the will of an unpopular President over the interests of the people of Texas. We will not forget that you were willing once again to sell out the people who run this state.
