Message:

I am a proud fifth-generation Texan and native Houstonian, and I strongly oppose any redistricting efforts in and around my city or anywhere in our great state that are designed to favor the Republican Party. Every Texan, no matter where they live, deserves fair and equal representation.

Our elected officials have one job: to serve the people. As citizens of this republic, we have the right to choose leaders who reflect our values, uphold our morals, and represent our beliefs. If an official cannot do that, they should step down, not manipulate district lines to cling to power and silence the will of the people.

We, the people, give our representatives their authority, not the other way around. If Republicans move forward with yet another attempt to gerrymander communities that have already been unfairly carved up, they should prepare for serious pushback. Texans will not tolerate this. It is unethical, not democracy, and it is un-American.
