Message:

Redistricting in Texas has repeatedly been used as a tool for gerrymandering, manipulating district boundaries to favor one political party and dilute the voting power of minority communities. This undermines fair representation, erodes public trust in the democratic process, and silences the voices of millions of Texans. Instead of reflecting the state's diverse population, these gerrymandered maps prioritize partisan gain over equal representation. It's time to end the practice of drawing districts behind closed doors and move toward a transparent, nonpartisan process that ensures every vote counts equally.
