Dear Members of the Texas State Senate Redistricting Committee,

While I haven't spent most of my life in Texas, this state has become home in a deeply meaningful way. My husband and his family are lifelong Texans (multiple generations), and we care deeply about the future of this state and what it stands for.

That's why I'm troubled by what's happening with redistricting. Without a new census or clear justification, this process feels out of step with the principles of fairness and transparency. It raises serious concerns about whether all voices are being heard and represented equally.

As a woman of faith, I believe in justice, truth, and loving our neighbors well. Gerrymandering, regardless of which party benefits, goes against those values. Our communities deserve to be represented honestly, not divided up for political advantage.

Please know that people are paying attention. We're asking you to lead with integrity, to protect the voices of all Texans, and to ensure that this process reflects the best of who we are, not the worst of what politics can be.

Christ's Peace,

Kim Jones
