Message:

I'm writing as a concerned constituent to express my strong opposition to the proposed redistricting effort occurring only five years after the last census-based maps were approved. Redistricting is meant to take place once every ten years based on new census data—not as a tool for short-term political gain. This mid-decade redraw appears to serve partisan interests rather than the fair representation of Texans and threatens the integrity of our democratic process.

Gerrymandering erodes trust in our elections and silences the voices of communities by manipulating district lines for political advantage. If Democrats were attempting this under similar circumstances, I believe the response would be outrage. I respectfully urge you to reject this unnecessary and harmful redistricting and to stand for a process that puts the people of Texas—not party power—first.
