To the Special Committee:

To redistrict now, in the middle of the cycle in which redistricting is normally allowed, is wrong. It is a power move by the Executive office in Washington, without any interest whatsoever in the well-being and democratic representation of citizens of Texas. President Trump simply wants to wield as much, and more, power as is possible within the confines of our system, which are proving to be insufficient to contain his ambitions. All the people of Texas have the right to representative government, as citizens, and we have the right to expect and demand that our elected representatives and senators act to preserve the constitutional rights of each of us, not only those who are currently in the majority. Please consider the constitution and the rights of all our people when weighing the merits of a redistricting at this time, at the behest of the Executive, to which our Governor bows in deference, in order to avoid any political repercussions from our President, who has proven himself many times to be a vindictive politician.

Thank you for considering this plea for democracy.
